

FCE Describing Photos 2

Describing the first picture

Well ... in the first picture we can see a man on a... I think it's a tram. Everyone is wearing coats so it must be winter or autumn

Describing the second picture

The second photo looks like an underground station. The people look like they are dressed for work. They look like office workers.

Comparing the pictures

Both pictures are about public transport, I mean people travelling around in a city somewhere.

Contrasting the pictures

Unlike the first picture, it isn't cold in the second one. Maybe they are different times of day as well. The second picture looks like the rush hour. On the other hand, there is an old man sitting down in the first one and the people don't look like they are in a hurry.

Speculating

I think the man in the foreground in the first picture might be on holiday. He looks very relaxed and happy. The people in the second picture might be going home after a stressful day at the office. They look like commuters and maybe they have to travel quite a long way to get home every day.

Personal feelings

For me, I would far rather be in the first photo because trams travel above ground so you can see more of the city. On the underground you can't really see very much at all. Then again, if I were going to work, I might take the underground as it's quicker.
